MEDICINAL.

Paine's Celery Compound

WEAK NERVES
PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND is a Nervine Tonic which never fails. Contains Celery and does three wonderful things: stimulates, it speedsily cures all nervous disorders.

RHEUMATISM
PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND purifies the blood, it drives out the lactic acid, which causes Rheumatism, and restores the blood-making organs to a healthy condition. It is the true remedy for Rheumatism.

KIDNEY COMPLAINTS
PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND quickly restores the liver and kidneys to perfect health. This curative power, combined with its nerve tonic, makes it the best remedy for all kidney complaints.

DYSPEPSIA
PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND strengthens the stomach, and quiets the nerves of the digestive organs. This is why it cures even the worst cases of Dyspepsia.

CONSTIPATION
PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND is not a cathartic. It is a laxative, giving easy and natural action to the bowels. Regularity surely follows its use.

A Terrible Confession.

A decided sensation was created in Philadelphia yesterday, when Mrs. Sarah Jane Whiting voluntarily confessed that she had poisoned her two children—a girl, aged nine, and a boy, aged two years—and that she had furnished her husband with the poison with which, she declares, he took his own life.

"I am sorry now that I killed them, and want people to pray for me, if it is not too late," she sobbed, as she sat in the corner's office. "My conscience is clear now, and I feel easier because I have told everything. Dear little Bertie and Willie, I will meet you in heaven." Further soliloquy was cut short by an officer, who took the woman to the Central Police Station, whence she was conveyed to Moyamensing prison. Mrs. Whiting, her nine-year-old daughter, Bertha, and a boy, Willie, two years old. The family lived in poverty in the rear of No. 1227 Cadwalader street, and the husband died on March 20th last, the girl on April 24th, and the little boy on May 26th.

Detectives worked at her for a confession, but until to-day were unsuccessful. Finally, the woman broke down from the weight of her awful secret, and made a clean breast of the whole affair, and when taken before the coroner yesterday she detailed to that official with great minuteness how she had poisoned the children. "I gave Bertie the first dose of the poison on April 21st," she said, "and on April 24th she died. I put one spoonful of the stuff in a glass of water and called the child to me, and said, 'Now, Bertie, here is some medicine; you must take it like a good girl,' and I gave her one spoonful. It made her sick, and when the doctors prescribed some powders to be given in water, I bought the medicine, but gave her a spoonful of the poison every half hour instead. It made her so very sick and she suffered so much, that I felt sorry, and the day before she died I stopped giving her poison, and gave her the medicine, but it was too late. Little Willie died the same way. I had the insurance placed on each child only a short time before they died."

"And, I suppose, you arranged to have all three deaths come a month apart, so as not to excite suspicion?" asked the coroner.

"Yes, I thought if they all came together the neighbors would suspect me," was the answer. But when asked if she had given poison to her husband, the woman stoutly maintained that he had taken his own life. "I did not tell the doctor that he had swallowed poison," she said, "because the insurance policy said the money would not be paid if the person committed suicide."

"I killed Bertie because I was afraid she would grow up in sin and crime, as she was a bad child, and had stolen pennies from the neighbors, and once she stole her school teacher's pocketbook. The boy I killed because he was in the way."

"I am sorry now for what I have done, and want people to pray for me," she said to the coroner after the confession had been concluded. "I could not sleep in the house, and on Sunday I thought of taking my life, and I had such horrid thoughts, but I dared not do it. I was afraid I could never go to heaven, for you know the Bible says that suicides cannot enter heaven."

On Monday, June 4, Coroner Ashbridge was informed that the three deaths were of a suspicious nature, and he began an investigation, aided by a city detective, which led to the arrest of the woman and her confession that she poisoned her two children. She stoutly maintained that her husband committed suicide because of his poverty and poor health, though she admits having bought the poison with which his life was ended.

Certificates of death from natural causes were given by the attending physicians in all three cases. The coroner decided that a post mortem examination of the bodies should be held, and upon hearing of this action Mrs. Whiting attended it. She professed great piety at the time, and on Sunday last she went to a church in the neighborhood of her home, and kneeling at the altar last asked the prayers of the congregation for the forgiveness of her sins. Her actions, together with the result of the examination, which proved conclusively that poison had been the cause of all three deaths, led to her arrest last Sunday night. There were several policies of insurance on the lives of the woman's victims, each of them being for a small amount, but amounting, in the aggregate, to $369, all of which she collected.
